

The Sea

When I open the door, I can see the sky burning quietly in the sea, a thousand of stars are whispering my name, the wind is soft, but never quite the same. A memory walks barefoot through the night, carrying shadows in silver lights, and silence sing what I cannot explain.